The Sons of Maita Charity Ball. A custom long observed in this city is to be continued on the 14th inst., of giving a fashionable ball to collect funds to be disposed of in charitable distributions. Some object to this method; they claim that it is getting rid of distress without calling out any compassionate feeling in those who give, or in any grateful feelings in those who receive. Some contend that misery should run its course with nothing but the mercy of God to stay it, than that we should thus corrupt our charities;

that it is much more easy to desecrate our duties than to consecrate our amusements. In this objection there is some, but very little point. It is true that the education and benefits of charity are personal matters with the giver and receiver of the benefits. Yet, on examination, it will be found that there are more truly generous souls, men and women, who are actuated by the pure spirit of beneficence than the world—the censorious world-esteems such. Those who dance at balls, feast at dinners, and dissipate at bazaars, may, and often do, have more heart, often times, than their critics. Whatever be the direct influence of associations of the I.O. Sons of Malta, they have been made the instrument of doing great good directly, and causing many thoughtless persons to devote their lives and substance to good deeds.

Prepare for and attend the ball at the Opera house, and let the receipts prove a large fund for the poor who are suffering during this inclement season.

XXXVIth CONGRESS—1st SESSION.

WASHINGTON, January 3. SENATE,-There was a very slim attendance. Mr. Hamlin asked leave to withdraw cer tain petitions.

Several private bills were read and referred Mr. King stated that the resolutions adopted at the Union meeting at Rochester, N. Y., had been forwarded to the Senators from that State, and he would request that they be read. The Secretary read them.

Mr. King desired to say a few words on these resolutions. He, in presenting them, was gratified to say that the people of New York favored in their attachment to republican institutions and our present form of Gov ernment. All parties there entertained the sentiment, "The Union must and shall be pre-That sentiment could not be turned to party account. The Union meeting had proved the strength of that sentiment, and the resolutions adopted speak for the whole peo-ple of the State. He called the attention of the Democratic Senators, who had expressed disunion sentiments, to the fact that these expressions of attachment to the Union came from prominent Democrats of the North.

resolutions were laid on the table. Mr. Slidell moved to refer the paper on the subject of the Houman's land claim to the Committee on the Judiciary. It belonged praperly to the Committee on Private Land Claims, but as the motives of himself and col-leage on that motion had been impugned, and as Mr. Benjamin was Chairman of that Committee, he desired to change its reference.

Mr. Collamer called attention to the fact that Mr. Benjamin was also on that committee. The subject was laid over till to-morrow. A large number of petitions of no general interest

Mr. Brown, of Miss., desired to disclaim any intention, as imputed by the newspapers, to assail the President or his message, unless by his respectful expression of his dissent to some of his statements, they considered him in that light. He entertained a strong personal regard for the President, but if he did not, age and his long public services would. he had a right, however, in comi every citizen, to courteously express his views, and would do so.

Mr. B. then referred to the expression of the President, that the Dred Scott decision estiled the slavery question. He denied this; further legislation would be needed. The judiciary, the President said, could apply remedies for any wrongs to slave property in the territories. Congress must at once act, and pass laws authorizing protection of slaveholders in Kansas, in their slaves, as American citizens in protecting their property intransitu over the Isthmus—a measure recommended by the President. The courts could not furnish protection to slavery in Kansas without statuatory law.

He would demand his rights under the Con atitution, and would see the Democratic party destroyed before he would withhold the honest expression of his sentiments. Without further legislation there will be no more slave territory, and, consequently, no more slave States. He knew what would become of the Dred Scott decision if the Anti-Slavery party have the United States Supreme Court. In order to preserve the Union, slave States must

A speech was made by Mr. Doolittle, who declared that the threat made by the South of breaking up the Union, was addressed not to the manhood of Northern Senators, but to their want of it.

He went into a history of the legislation of the country to show that every administration, from that of Washington to the present, had recognized and exercised the power of Congress over the territories.

Mr. Doolittle gave notice to the Senators of the South who threatened disunion, that if they designed to seize on the Government they would resist and put down the attempt peacefully. He denounced the term "Servill," applied by the Senator from Virginia to the Northern States. After further debate the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—Mr. Boyce, who had the floor on Friday last, resumed his remarks.

Mr. Hickman made explanation, that if differences occurred between the sections of the Union, the responsibility will rest on the

ALBANT, January 3.—The New York State Legislature met yesterday. The Assembly organized by electing Mr. Littlejohn Speaker.
The Governor's Message is a document of considerable length, and refers almost entirely to matters of local interest. He thinks it inexpedient that the canals pass from the control of the State, and strongly urges that they be completed with a water way of seven feet deep and seventy feet wide before the opening of next restored. 1861.

of navigation in 1861.

The Governor does not doubt either the wis-The Governor does not doubt either the wis-dom or justice for reimposing, for a few years, a moderate toll per tun, during the season of navigation, upon all freight passing over rail-roads competing with the canals, or of requir-ing these roads to pay an equivalent in monay annually into the treasury. When the canals shall have been completed, the railroads should be relived from this burden temporarily im-posed.

In speaking of the Metropolitan Police Law
he says the discipline, conduct and efficiency of the pelice of New York fully vindicate the wisdom and propriety of that law. Even those who opposed its enactment new admit that New York never had so good a police, and citizens of other States propose the introduction into their larger cities of a system similarly conducted.

He recommends that the Legislature grant further aid for the completion of the Central

In speaking of the defenses of New York the Governor remarks that it is obvious that the approach of New York by water is not now adequately defended, and invites the Legislature to consider whether some action of theirs may not aid in procuring from Congress the means for the prempt completion of our defensive works.

The Governor thinks that the Registry Law of 1859 has answered its purposes, and advises some amendments to make it still better.

The Governor concludes his message as follows: New York yields to none of her sister States in her devotion to the Union. She reveres it as the fruit of a long protracted contest for liberty and independence, and she cherishes it for its present benefits, and its guarantees for the future. Her citizens discovered, at a very early period, that slavery was an evil, and prompt and considerate pro-vision was made for its extinction. So far as our example was worthy of imitation, the other members of the confederacy had the advantage of it; but we never claimed that we had the right to interfere, directly or indirectly, with slavery as it existed in the other States of the Union. We were satisfied with the solemn and earnest declaration recorded upon our statute book, that we regarded slavery as a social evil, and treated it accordingly. New York still maintains the same position. She emphatically disavows all sympathy or co-operation with those misguided men who, no matter under what provocation, who have sought in the past, or who may seek in the future, unlawfully to interfere with any of her sister States. That the offenders in the recent invasion of Virginia intended to subvert the existing government, and establish in its stead another more consonant with their notions of justice and equal rights, is not cer-

That they propose to liberate and arm the slaves of that region, and aid their ercape to a foreign country, is beyond dispute, and that purpose, it need hardly be observed, was unlawful, and certain to be resisted at all hazards. Bloodshed thus incited rests in the eye of human law, on the heads of those whose violation of laws provoked or caused it. We lation of laws provoked or caused it. We may admit that their aims were unselfish and even philanthropic, that they honestly be-lieved and felt that they were risking life in behalf of the wronged and oppressed; but we must never forget the obvious truth that social order can only exist through a general recog-nition of the sanctity of law, and that tranquility and security must vanish from that community wherein every one shall feel at liberty to redress whatever he deems grievous by raising his arm against the authorities and the laws.

Another question is presented when it is proposed to establish or to permit the estab-lishment of slavery in the Territories. Being the common property of the whole people so long as they remain Territories, New York will claim the right to participate in their government. In no way can she do so except through the agency of her chosen represents tives in Congress, and therefore it is that the electors of New York recognize the authority of Congress to legislate for the Territories and prohibit the establishment of slavery therein Yielding cheerful obedience to the doctrines of State sovereignty; having no disposition to interfere with the local institutions of the States; prepared at all times to aid those States in the preservation of their sovereign power, New York, enforcing her views in a legal, peaceful and constitutional manner, will not surrender the right to participate in the reformation of this or any other evil in the administration of the National Government.

From New York.

New York, January 3.—The annual report of the State Controller, states the following facts: State indebtedness in round numbers, including the canal debt, $33,883,000; canal revenue nearly $1,860,000; expenses nearly $898,000; real estate valuation, $109,866,000; personal property, $315,108,000; total taxation for the year, $16,353,000; deficiency in the general fund, $15,000; decline in the treasury, upward of $680,000; estimated revenue of the current year, upward of $2,994,000; estimated expenses, $2,315,000. expenses, $2,815,000.

This morning, at the opening of court, Hon.

James J. Rossevelt presented his credentials and took the oath of office, as prescribed by the Constitution of the United States, as District-Attorney for the Southern District of New York.

Mayor Wood took possession, this forenoon, of his old quarters at the City Hall, and commenced business by dismissing all the attaches of the Mayor's office excepting three. His message contains but little novelty. Its aim is to show that the Mayor should not be held responsible for anything, inasmuch as the various branches of the government are al-most independent of his authority.
